

NEWS RELEASE
AUGUST, 2017

Cauley Pridgen, P.A. is pleased to announce Emily C. Cauley has joined the firm as an associate attorney. “We are pleased to welcome Emily as the newest attorney in our firm” said firm vice-president, Brian Pridgen. “Her legal training and her familiarity with the firm before and during her law school years will allow her to immediately assist our clients and hit the ground running.”

In addition to her prior work with criminal and domestic practice law firms, Emily has worked in health insurance policy sales and she completed an internship with the Onslow County District Attorney’s Office. She earned her law degree from Campbell University School of Law in Raleigh and she received her undergraduate degree in Business Administration from North Carolina State University. Emily will practice primarily from the firm’s Raleigh and Wilson offices.

Cauley Pridgen, P.A. traces its history back to the 1940s and limits its practice to matters related to business, government and land. The firm’s lawyers have extensive experience in the representation of local, regional and international businesses, local governments and elected officials. For more information, contact the firm or visit our website.
